A presentation on the methodological challenges of building a digital oral history collection for the Vietnamese American community in Southern California as the refugee generation is passing away. It reflects on this current moment of archiving refugee stories and providing access to the public at a time of heightened xenophobia around another “international refugee crisis.”

Dr. Thuy Vo Dang is Archivist for the Southeast Asian Archive in the University of California, Irvine Libraries, leading its new Orange County and Southeast Asian Archive Center (OC & SEAA).
