

Breaking Out of the Classroom
Call for Applications
Deadlines: June 1 and December 1

Purpose: To provide financial support to faculty who teach undergraduate courses that bring students into the community to connect classroom knowledge with how it is applied or experienced. We promote dialogue, exchange, and collaboration between UC San Diego scholars and the greater San Diego community. Collaboration and partnership is based on values including relationship-building, reciprocity, and mutual benefit.

Eligibility: Applications are invited from UC San Diego Senate and Non-Senate Faculty in the Arts and Humanities and Social Sciences who will teach an undergraduate course. Associate-Ins may apply, but preference will be given to faculty. Preference will be given to courses or experiences that fall under one of the following four themes.

1. Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion, with a focus on race, ethnicity, and social justice;
2. Global Arts and Humanities, with attention to linking investigation of seemingly disparate people and places across geographic, cultural, and chronological boundaries;
3. Public Arts and Humanities, with a commitment to collaboration with local and regional libraries, museums, and community forums; and
4. Digital Arts and Humanities, with concentration on how digital tools and technology can create and support research, pedagogy, and university/community interface.

Award Amount: Up to $1,000. Please ask for only the amount you plan to spend. Funds not spent will be returned to IAH. Awards will be transferred to the faculty's home department, which will be responsible for reimbursements.

Application Process: Please fill out the attached form with the following information:

1. Applicant Name and Title
2. Department
3. Course Number and Course Name (existing or proposed)
4. Course Description
5. Name of community partner or destination
6. Description of activities to be supported. Activities must take students off-campus and bring them into contact with individuals who are not part of UC San Diego.
7. How the off-campus activity will be managed. Will the activity be an option for extra credit? How will transportation be organized?
8. How the project relates to one or more of the four themes listed above
9. Simple budget
10. Other sources of funding (preference is given to projects with no other funding)

Please send applications to iah@ucsd.edu with a subject line, "Breaking Out of the Classroom: Applicant Name". Please copy your MSO on the application.

Reporting: A one-page progress report is due one year from the date of the award and should include information on how funds were spent. Funds not spent will be returned to IAH.

Breaking Out of the Classroom Application

Name _____ Department _____

Position Title (Assistant Professor, etc.) _____

Course Number _____ Quarter Offered _____

Course Name _____

Name of Community Partner(s)/Destination(s) _____

Course Description

Description of activities to be supported. Activities must take students off-campus and bring them into contact with individuals who are not part of UC San Diego.

How the off-campus activity will be managed. Will the activity be an option for extra credit?
How will transportation be organized?

How the project relates to one or more of the four themes listed above.

Simple budget

Item	Quantity	Item Cost	Total Cost

Total
-------	--

Other sources of funding (preference is given to projects with no other funding)

Other comments

Submit applications to iah@ucsd.edu with a subject line, “Breaking Out of the Classroom: Applicant Name”. Please copy your MSO on the application.