

Breaking Out of the Classroom
Call for Applications
Deadline: Rolling
Award Amount: Up to $500, budget permitting

Purpose: To provide financial support to faculty who teach undergraduate courses that bring students into the community to connect classroom knowledge with how it is applied or experienced. We promote dialogue, exchange, and collaboration between UC San Diego scholars and the greater San Diego community. Collaboration and partnership are based on values including relationship-building, reciprocity, and mutual benefit.

Eligibility: Applications are invited from UC San Diego Senate and Non-Senate Faculty in the School of Arts and Humanities who will teach an undergraduate course. Associate-Instructors may apply, with preference given to faculty. Preference will be given to courses or experiences that fall under one of the following four themes.

1. Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion, with a focus on race, ethnicity, and social justice;
2. Global Arts and Humanities, with attention to linking investigation of seemingly disparate people and places across geographic, cultural, and chronological boundaries;
3. Public Arts and Humanities, with a commitment to collaboration with local and regional libraries, museums, and community forum.

Application Process: Please fill out the questions below and submit applications to iah@ucsd.edu with subject line, "Breaking Out of the Classroom: Applicant Name". Please copy your MSO on the application.

Name _____ Department _____

Course Name and Number _____

Name of Community Partner/Destination/Description of Activities

--

Budget (IAH will not cover food.)

Item	Quantity	Item Cost	Total Cost
Admission Ticket
		Total

How the off-campus activity will be managed, how transportation will be organized, other notes:

--